EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws, which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article of the Civil Service Gazette.

SIMPLE PHOSPHORUS PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 5), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
Dr. KIRBY says: "Experience fully warrants the administration of Phosphorus in this dose" in severe attacks of Neuralgia and cases of extreme Nervous Exhaustion; it gives excellent results, taken with food three or four times a day.

PHOSPHORUS AND QUININE PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 3), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
This is a valuable combination of two powerful restoratives. As a nutrient tonic it gives power to the brain and spinal cord, imparts tone to the digestive organs, increases functional activity and improves the condition of the whole system. It is largely employed in India during convalescent stages of intermittent and remittent fevers. It is an excellent remedy for Malaise induced by the climate, and is a good prophylactic against Malaria.

PHOSPHORUS AND IRON PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 7), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
This is given with great advantage in Anæmia, Sciatica, and other Neuralgic affections, also in the treatment of convalescence from fever and other debilitating diseases. It is an excellent chemical food for anæmic children, and a good adjuvant to a course of cod liver oil.

PHOSPHORUS AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula No. 6), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.
This combination is useful in all the cases named above, but especially in cases of feeble digestion and loss of power, following excesses. Taken regularly with food for a few weeks it has a powerfully renovating effect on broken-down constitutions.

PHOSPHORUS, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 4), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.
The use of this combination will be gathered from what has been said of the previous Formulæ. Nos. 3 and 6.
For a similar combination with Iron, see No. 9.

COMPOUND PHOSPHORUS PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 9), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus, with Iron, Quinine and Strychnia.
This combination of nerve tonics has a very large application It is efficacious in all disorders which are characterised by impoverished blood and diminished nerve power, especially in that low condition of the general health which is induced by overwork, dissipation, and excesses of various kinds. In this state iron and phosphorus is strongly indicated. In Constitutional Syphilis it has a high remedial power, by improving the condition of the blood and by stimulating its regenerative power. It is exceedingly energising and strength-giving. As a tonic for convalescents recovering from fever and other exhausting diseases it is unequalled.

STRONG PHOSPHORUS, IRON, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 13), containing 1-25th gr. Phosphorus.
This is double the strength of No. 9 as regards Phosphorus and Quinine, and therefore should be prescribed only in cases where the larger dose of Phosphorus is needed.

PHOSPHORUS, CANTHARIDES & NUX VOMICA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 20), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.
This pill produces no irritation of the gastro-intestinal mucous membrane, but operates as a gentle stimulant to the genito-urinal organs. It is especially useful in premature failure of power, induced by passive discharges due to debility. It is useful also as a stimulating emmenagogue in obstinate cases of Amenorrhœa, Leucorrhœa, and Atony of the Uterus.
Formula No. 30 contains Iron, and as a tonic is most suitable for feeble, anæmic females.

PHOSPHORUS AND DAMIANA PILLS.
(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 34), containing 1-33rd gr Phosphorus.
The Extract in this pill is made from the True Damiana Plant ("Turnera Aphrodisiaca"), and is a valuable aid to Phosphorus when required as a remedy for impotence.

ADVENTUROUS SEDDIES.—Captain E. W. Owens, of the s.s. Netherby Hall, which arrived in harbour yesterday morning from Liverpool, reports that during the voyage he picked up two Seddies in the Red Sea on Tuesday, the 13th October. It seems that the two Seddies were out of work at Jedda for a long time, so they left Jedda in a small tonj, and were proceeding to Aden in quest of work. After being three days at sea they saw the s.s. Netherby Hall and wished to be picked up, fearing the tonj being small might sink or might not reach its destination. The Captain accordingly ordered them to be taken on board. They were kindly treated and brought to Bombay.

ADMITTED TO BAIL.—Venayek Narayen Bhathey, who was sentenced by Mr. Slater, acting Chief Presidency Magistrate, to three months' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 300 for defaming Mr. V. A. Modak, has been admitted to bail pending the disposal of an appeal to the High Court. On Thursday, Mr. Gazdar, with Mr. Morojee, pleader, appeared on behalf of the accused before the Chief Justice at his bungalow, and presented an appeal from Mr. Slater's decision, asking that his client might be bailed meanwhile. The Chief Justice accepted the appeal, and ordered the accused's release in his own recognisances for Rs. 1,000, and one surety for a like amount.

INSANITARY MILCH CATTLE STABLES.—At the instance of Mr. Douglas Bennet, Superintendent of the License Department of the Bombay Municipality, a number of persons who had omitted to take out licenses were prosecuted before Mr. Slater, at the Esplanade Police Court yesterday, and were fined on conviction. One of the cases was against Ballu Narsinga and six other keepers of milch cattle stables, at Wellington Street, near the Marine Lines railway station. Mr Bonnet stated that not only had the defendants failed to take out licenses, but had been keeping their stables in a very insanitary and filthy condition. The Magistrate fined the man from Rs. 15 to Rs. 25, ordering them to vacate the premises within a month, and warning them that they would be fined heavily in case of default.

LECTURE IN THE CATHOLIC LIBRARY, CAVEL.—An interesting lecture was delivered on Thursday evening, in the hall of the Cavel Catholic Library, by the very Rev. D'Montes, D.D., D.C.L., the subject being "Roman Reminiscences." The nature of the lecture was expected to draw a large house, and long before 6-30 p.m. all the seats were occupied, and all standing room besieged. After amusing the audience with some incidents of his voyage to Rome, which were received with much applause, the reverend gentleman went on to mention some interesting details about the Eternal City. He classified Rome into the churches of the Catacombs, the churches of the Basilicas, the churches of the Cloister, and the churches of the schools. The details of size and structure of some of the more important buildings proved very interesting, and the appreciation of the audience was exhibited in loud applause at the close of the lecture.

A DISHONEST GOLDSMITH.—At the Girgaum Police Court yesterday, before Mr. W. R. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, Koosaba Jaitha, a goldsmith, appeared to answer a charge of criminal breach of trust, in respect of a silver medal and a certificate of character, preferred against him by Rama Sacaram. A few years ago the complainant was employed in the Burma Military Police in the capacity of a sepoy for about three years and then left. He came to Bombay a few months ago and on his arrival he gave a silver medal, which he had gained for good conduct, and a certificate of character to the accused for safe custody. A fortnight ago the complainant went to the goldsmith's shop to demand the medal and the certificate when the accused put him off on some pretext. The complainant afterwards demanded the medal and certificate several times from the accused, who still put off the complainant with some excuse. The complainant, thereupon, became suspicious, and on enquiry he ascertained that the accused had melted down the medal and used up the silver. The accused then managed to keep himself out of the complainant's way, but the latter told the accused's wife, he meant to take criminal proceedings against her husband if he failed to deliver over the medal to him. The accused's wife tendered Rs. 35 to the complainant in consideration for the medal, but the complainant refused to accept the money and reported the matter to the police. The accused denied offence and said that he had bought the medal from the complainant for Rs. 3-8. The Magistrate disbelieving the statement of the accused, sentenced him to pay a fine of Rs. 15.

ELEVEN CHARGES OF THEFT.—Yesterday, at the Esplanade Police Courts, a Goanese butler, named Piedad Dias Caetan, was placed before Mr. Richardson, at the instance of Inspector Saunders, for having committed petty thefts in no fewer than eleven different cases. In one case he appeared to have appropriated to himself a coat, waist-coat, and trowsers belonging to A. F. De Lima, who resided in Cavel, and had missed the articles about a week ago. The accused denied the charges saying that one Poade, who had since proceeded on a voyage, had given them to him. A Goanese washerman, however, called by Inspector Saunders, stated that the accused had given him the garments for washing, informing him that they were his property. In another cause, the accused was charged with the theft of a dress-coat, the property of one Minguel Tavares, a baker, residing in New Sonapore. In answer to the Magistrate, the accused admitted having stolen the coat in concert with Poade, the man who had gone on a voyage, and having pledged it with a Marwaree shop-keeper. In the third case, the stolen property was a metal watch belonging to J. C. F. DeSouza, a sub-inspector of the Bombay Municipality. The accused admitted having stolen the watch from the complainant's residence, at Girgaum Road, and having pawned it to a Marwaree for one rupee. The property in some of the remaining cases was identified as belonging to different parties who were before the Court, but who were not examined, the Magistrate's jurisdiction being limited to three charges at a time against an accused person. The prisoner urged that the bulk of the property was stolen by Poade, who had gone on a voyage by the s. s. Sultan, and had pawned the articles with Marwarees through the accused. He was convicted on three of the charges and sentenced to an aggregate term of eighteen months' rigorous imprisonment.

NUISANCE BY IDOL-WORSHIPPERS.

AT the Girgaum Police Court yesterday, Mr. Jethabhoy Vurdhman appeared before Mr. W. R. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, to answer a summons taken out against him by Mr. James Hume Sleigh, of the Bank of Bombay, for causing a nuisance by allowing an idol to remain in his bungalow at Malabar Hill for public view. Mr. Brown, of the firm of Messrs. Conroy and Brown, appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. Roughton, of the firm of Messrs. Roughton and Byrne, appeared for the defendant. The facts of the case have already been reported.

Mr. Roughton, at the outset, said that he should mention before the case was gone into, that the defendant was quite willing to abate the alleged nuisance and he was also ready to remove the idol on Monday next. Meanwhile, Mr. Roughton said, his client was ready to undertake that no tom-tomming whatever would take place during the day or night. Mr. Roughton could not undertake to prevent people from coming to see the newly-discovered idol, or the rattling of the vehicles. He would promise that there would be no native music or anything of the sort, and his client was sorry to find that Mr. Sleigh has been forced to come into the Court at all. Preparations for the reception of the idol were now being made in a temple, and no sooner would the receptacle be ready than the idol would be removed. His client regretted the nuisance that had been caused to Mr. Sleigh and his family, and he was very anxious to cause no more annoyance to them.

The Magistrate: You undertake to prevent all sorts of tom-tom?

Mr. Roughton: We cannot undertake to prevent the people from coming to see the idol. We undertake to stop all sorts of music during the day and night. We are quite willing to protect Mr. Sleigh and his family from any nuisance. I ask, your Worship, therefore, to formally postpone the case until Monday next to see that we meanwhile carry out the undertaking. If we fail to do so by Monday evening, then the case should, of course, be proceeded with. The receptacle will be ready before Monday morning, and on that day the idol will be positively removed.

Mr. Brown: That is a reasonable suggestion, and I consent to the formal postponement to see if the defendant fulfils his undertaking.

Mr. Sleigh: I want an open apology.

The defendant here shook hands with Mr. Sleigh and said to the Magistrate: "We both become friends now your Worship. (Laughter.) There is no more quarrel now." The Magistrate then formally postponed the case until Tuesday next, and the parties left the Court.

THE DARING ROBBERY IN A TRAIN.

AT the Girgaum Police Court yesterday, before Mr. W. R. Hamilton, Second Presidency Magistrate, Khan Saheb Nowrojee Kaikobad, Inspector of the B. B. and C. I. Railway, brought up on remand and charged Salamatray Hanmantray with committing a robbery in a railway train, on the night of 7th ultimo, between the stations of Nowsari and Damaun. The accused was further charged with travelling in a second-class carriage with a third-class ticket, and also jumping out of the train while it was in motion. He was also charged with escaping from the legal custody of the police while detained in the J. J. Hospital, suffering from the injury to his left leg, received in jumping from the train. The facts of the case and the full circumstances under which the accused had stolen Rs. 1,500, the property of the Nabob of Bela, who was sleeping in a first-class carriage of the train at the time, were reported in our issue of the 8th September. The accused was caught by Mr. Nanabhoy Bomanjee Marshall while trying to break open his box, whereupon he jumped out of the train and escaped. He was arrested next day at Palgadh Station on suspicion. Several previous convictions against the accused were produced by a warder of the Sholapur Jail, who identified the accused. The Magistrate after recording the evidence, committed the accused, who reserved his defence, to take his trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

THE scene witnessed in April, 1889, when Oklahoma was thrown open to settlement was repeated on the 22nd, when about 800,000 acres more of Indian territory was declared open. The new lands are situated about nine miles from Guthrie, the chief city of Oklahoma. New settlers or "boomers" have been assembling there for several weeks past till they numbered about 15,000. When the time to start came all started in a mad rush for the new lands in the same manner as before. There were fewer deserving persons in the crowd this time, most of them being adventurers and speculators who are seeking to seize the land and sell it to others coming after. Still there will be much suffering and privation, as only a small portion of the land is desirable.

LORD WOLSELY, speaking at Cork, expressed the hope that pressure would be brought to bear on the Government to provide good employment in Government service for the soldiers throughout the country as they completed their terms. He was glad to say that at the present moment in Great Britain there was a very large proportion of men in the police who had been soldiers. He hoped they might go on increasing every year, and that by-and-by no appointments would be given away by the Government as long as there were soldiers and sailors competent to fill them. He believed such was the improvement in the moral character of the men composing the army that the time would come when all employers of labour who had offices to give away would apply to the officers asking them if they had men whom they could recommend. When he joined the army the idea was to make the soldier, apart from the civil population, a soldier and nothing else; but the idea of the modern school of the army was entirely different. It was to teach the men that it was to their advantage to behave well, and enforce discipline by moral pressure rather than by the old system of putting them into cells and prison.

LORD HARRIS AT AHMEDNAGAR.

HIS Excellency the Governor, at Ahmednagar, on Wednesday, replying to the address which we published yesterday, said:—

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Ahmednagar Municipality,—For the very cordial welcome you have given me, both on my progress throughout the town and this morning and in the words of this address I beg to thank you most sincerely, and also for the very handsome casket in which you have conveyed it. It has been a great pleasure to me to take this opportunity of visiting Ahmednagar. I should have been glad if I could have visited it earlier, but the Bombay Presidency is a large province and parts of it are rather exacting. Consequently, I have not been able to visit you until a year and a half after my arrival in the country. But better late than never. I will take first the third paragraph of you address, in which you refer to the income of the Municipality and the sources from which it is derived. I am glad to see that you have got a housetax, but at the end, I observe you have octroi duties; I dont wish to blame you for imposing octroi duties, but you should bear in mind that the object of Government is to persuade local governing bodies to get rid of octroi duties as much as possible, which undoubtedly press on the poorer classes, in favour of house duties which can be so regulated as to press heavier on the wealthy classes of the people. I have not referred to this at any great length in other parts of the Presidency, but I do so here, as towards the end of the address you make an appeal about the poor. As you are so charitably minded I suggest that one direction in which you might relieve the poor is to put on heavier house duties and relieve the purses of the poor by making remissions of octroi. In the second paragraph you congratulate yourselves on freedom from the burden of debt. In that congratulation I most heartily join; at the same time, I would point out that it does not necessarily follow that because a local governing body is free from the burden of debt it is doing its whole duty. One duty, and a responsible one, laid on local bodies in this country, is the provision of pure water. That is a very responsible duty in this country, for we have undoubted facts which prove that the supply of pure water is the great enemy of cholera. In Kolhapur, cholera decreased on the supply of pure water. I am told also, though not on such reliable authority as at Kolhapur, that in Ahmedabad when the supply of pure water was increased the progress of cholera stopped suddenly and very unusually to what the practice has been in previous years. From antecedent experience, therefore, the decrease of cholera may be attributed to pure water. If that is the effect a very grave responsibility is laid on local municipalities to take care, that those whose interests are committed to their charge do have, as early as is possible, pure water; it is in fact a case of life or death. I am glad to say that you are exonerated from the category of those who are ignoring the safety of their fellow-citizens by a pretence for freedom from debt, for you are undertaking, or I hope you will shortly undertake, the supply of pure water, which you go on to discuss in the address. I trust at the same time that while you consider the supply of water you will not forget the corollary to that, viz. a good drainge system. You must remember that you have at your disposal an asset which you don't mention in the address, that is, credit. I don't say that you are to run into debt, but a responsibility rests on your shoulders and it is your duty, somehow or another, to fulfil those duties and, having a credit at your disposal, I am inclined to think that you will not be doing your duty if you ignore that credit. In the next paragraph you go on to Education and say that of eleven schools, nine are devoted to primary education. I congratulate you heartily on the attention you are devoting to that stage of education. I shall be glad if means can be found during my term in this Presidency to extend primary education, for without that we cannot attain that great object the contentment of the people which should be the aim of all governing bodies; and I trust that the Government of India will be generous and increase the amount which we may spend on primary education. If the Government is able to do that, local governing bodies will follow the example. I have had placed in my hands, on the

MYOPIA.

NEAR-SIGHTED OR SHORT-SIGHTED Persons readily appreciate the advantage of wearing Glasses which give them clear Vision for distant objects that would be shadowy or invisible to their unassisted Eyes; but the Vision of the Myopic Eye is generally abnormally acute for minute objects when brought sufficiently close to them, so that the same Persons are less ready to recognize the necessity of correcting the refraction for near objects too.

This necessity does not indeed arise in low degrees of Myopia, but when minute objects, such as small types, cannot be distinctly seen in a good light at the distance of a foot, Glasses are imperatively required for reading, in order to remove the causes that must otherwise operate to increase the defect.

It seldom happens, however, that the same Glasses are useful for correcting both distant and near Vision, and of the two the necessity for correcting the distant Vision is the more urgent, or it may rather be said that one is essentially necessary and the other convenient and desirable.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

BOMBAY MARKET REPORT.

FRIDAY EVENING, OCT. 23.

WITH little stimulating news from the consuming markets during the past week, business in Exports here has not been lively, and, for the principal staple, demand from local spinners has been very slack. Wheat has latterly become quiet at some reduction in rates; and Seeds have been taken to only a moderate amount by shippers, generally on the basis of previous quotations. Rates of Exchange have not varied more than 1-16d. and close lower to that extent in Bank Bills, and 1-32d. in Credits than last Friday evening's level. Government Paper, after fluctuating, is now 3-16 per cent. higher in Fours than it ruled a week ago. Freights are firm, but there is not much demand for tonnage for near shipment. There has been a rather better retail demand for staple Imports, and prices of some goods have rather an upward tendency; but the wholesale enquiry is still unusually slow for the time of year.

MONEY.—Following the falling off in the Cash Balance of 47½ lakhs shown at the close of the week before last, the decrease disclosed by the Presidency Bank's Statement of Affairs, issued on Monday afternoon, was comparatively small at 8¾ lakhs. The increased demand for money for the purposes of trade which was indicated by the last Return had, however, continued to some extent, and though the diminution in Private Deposits was very much less than in the week preceding, at 26 lakhs, and the increase in Bills Discounted smaller, at 2½ lakhs, the amount in Loans had become materially larger, say, by 5¼ lakhs, the total expansion in trade requirements being represented by some 34¼ lakhs, or 10¾ lakhs less than the increase shown by the previous Return, the Balance having been helped last week principally by an increase in Public Deposits, and the realization of Government Securities. No change was made at the board meeting yesterday afternoon, and 2 per cent. remains the Bank's minimum rate.

EXCHANGE remained quiet in tone to the close of last week, with 1s. 5d. quoted for three months' sight Credits for this month, and 1s. 5¼d. for next year up to May delivery; but business was only upon a moderate scale. Forward Telegraphic was quoted at 1s. 5 1-32d. for February-March transfer. The new week opened with a steadier feeling, with Bank Demand at 1s. 4 15-16 to 31-32d.; but there was little enquiry on Monday for Bank Remittance, and very free Private Bills were offering for October delivery at 1s. 5 5-32d. and for November at 1s. 5 3-16d. for three months' sight Credits. Opening at 1s. 4 15-16 to 31-32d. for Demand Bank Bills on Tuesday morning, the market remained steady at the latter rate throughout the day; but there was little doing in Bank Remittance, while Mercantile Paper was very scarce at 1s. 5 5-32d. for three months' sight Credits. On Wednesday the market was dull in tone, with a minimum of business passing in both directions. Bank Remittances ruled 1-32d. lower than on the previous day, and Private Bills possibly the same; but there was hardly anything doing to test the market. The feeling was quiet yesterday in spite of higher quotations for Silver, but steady all day, with 1s. 5¼d. to be had only in one direction for the mail, 1s. 5 5-32d. having been the best rate for this month, and 1s. 5 3-16d. for next. Some Bills were reported to have been placed at 1s. 5 9-32d. for April delivery, January to May having been quoted at 1s. 5½ to 9-32d. Bank Demand was steady at 1s. 4 15-16d. and at 1s. 4 31-32d. for the last half of November; with Telegraphic for next year's transfer, quoted at 1s. 5d. for January, 1s. 5 1-32d. for February, and 1s. 5 1-16d. for March. To-day the market has been flat, although a moderate amount of Private Bills for forward delivery have come out. A little Bank Demand at 1s. 4 15-16d. was done in the morning, but rates closed weak at our quotations for ready business; forward Telegraphic for next year's transfer, being quoted at 1s. 5 to 1s. 5 1-32d.; and Credits at 1s. 5 7-32d. for January delivery, and for March-April, at 1s. 5½ to 9-32d.

GOVERNMENT PAPER did not attract much attention on last mail day, but the feeling was steady, and rates for Fours were unchanged for demand, though a little lower was done for money. Closing quotations for the week were 105¾ for Fours for cash, 105⅞ for the next account, and 105 5-16 for the end of November. On Monday the price of Fours advanced 3-16 per cent. for Money and the next Settlement, and 1-16d. for the November account, on last Saturday evening's quotations, and the market remained steady at the rise, closing rates having been 105 15-16 for cash, 105 13-16 for the end of this month, and 105⅞ for the November account. The market was somewhat irregular, but weak on the whole on Tuesday, though in the afternoon the November account rate hardened to 105 7-16, the cash and next Settlement rates having been 105 ⅞ and 105 13-16, respectively. Eventually a decline of 1-16 per cent. on these rates was established, the cash price closing at 105 13-16. On the following day the market became steady at an advance of ⅛ per cent. in Fours in all positions, closing rates having been 106 for money, 106 15-16 for the next settling day, and 105 9-16 for the 30th November account. A further advance of 1-16 per cent. took place yesterday in Fours, both for Money and Account, the market having been steady at the rise. Closing quotations were 106 1-16 for cash, 106 for the approaching Settlement, and 105⅞ for the November account. To-day this market has been weak owing to Calcutta coming ⅛ per cent. lower, and rates for Fours have receded here 1-16 per cent., business having been done at the decline. We quote this evening 106 for Fours for cash, 105 15-16 for next Wednesday's Settlement, and 105⅛ for the November account. 105½ is still the nominal rate for 4½ per cents.

Municipal 5 per cent. loan is unchanged at 210. Port Trust Bonds are ½ per cent. lower, at 103.

SHARES have been neglected on all lines throughout the week, the feeling having been quiet, but generally steady; and our quotations this evening show hardly any change from those given in our last weekly report. As exceptions, we note a decline of Rs. 2 per share in Anglo-Indian Mill shares; of Rs. 5 each in Framji Petit, and Luckmidas; and of Rs. 2½ in Manockji Petit; and an advance of Rs. 5 in Swadeshi. In Press shares, New Berar, and Prince of Wales have advanced Rs. 5 and Rs. respectively; while Volkarts have declined Rs. In Miscellaneous shares, Bombay-Burma Trading are Rs. 100 higher on the first issue, and Rs. 25 on the others; Bombay Ice have advanced Rs. 6; and Port Canning are Rs. 5 higher.

IMPORTS.

PIECE-GOODS.—There has been a slightly improved retail demand for staple Grey Goods during the past week, but wholesale buyers have been operating sparingly. Prices are generally the same as before, though the tendency is rather upwards. Dealers are very willing to make sales at current rates as a rule, though in a few exceptional cases they demand a slight advance. Stocks here being gradually reduced. There has been a moderate demand for staple makes of Bleached Goods at previous rates. Dyed Turkey Red, and Printed, as well as local goods are unchanged in value and position. The off-take of Imported goods from the bazaar during the week is estimated at about 3,000 packages; that of Local goods at about 1,600 bales.

YARNS.—Only a small business has been done in Imported Twist during the week, and the tone of the market has been quiet, with prices quite unchanged. Sales of Local Spinnings at Hong Kong and Shanghai having been small, China buyers have shown a marked disinclination for fresh business except at lower rates. Spinners have refused to meet them beyond making a small concession in No. 20s; but the bazaar dealers have accepted a decline of more than 1-16 anna per lb. China Exchange, at Rs. 222, is half a dollar up. The Sales for the week are given at about 2,000 bales, and the market closed steady at the following official quotations:—

METALS.—Copper has been quiet in tone, with only a small business passing, and prices are quite unchanged. In Yellow Metal, a moderate business has been done in a quiet market, and at a reduction of 2as. per cwt. in rates. Iron has been in moderate request, and is steady at our last quotations.

COAL is steady. Sales have transpired during the week of 750 tons of ready Boyts, Merthyr, Cardiff, ex Inchlonga (s.) at Rs. 14½ per ton; and about 1,500 tons of Davison's West Hartley, November-December shipment, at Rs. 14¼ per ton. There have been forward sellers of Powell's Duffryn, Cardiff, and Davison's West Hartley, at Rs. 15¼ and Rs. 14¾ per ton, respectively. The stock on the Bunder is now estimated at 90,000 tons.

EXPORTS.

COTTON.—Last week closed with a small business doing in this market both for export and local spinners' account on the basis of previous rates; and since then the feeling has been quiet when not actually dull, with very little enquiry from the Mills, and less from shippers, prices, however, having been quoted as before. The purchases of old stuff for export have hardly exceeded 2,000 bales of Oomra and Dhollera kinds Bengals, and Westerns, but some contracts in Bhownugger of the new crop, for May delivery, have been reported; while, for local consumption, under 4,000 bales have been taken from godown, consisting of Oomra descriptions Bengals, and Ginned Compta. The market closed quiet this evening with prices the same as quoted a week ago.

The telegraphic Weather and Cotton Crop Report issued at the beginning of the week stated that it looked very like rain at Delhi, where 11 cents had already fallen since the date of the last official telegram; but the weather was bright in other parts of the Bengal circle, and no more rain was expected at Beawar, where much less than half the average had fallen, and where the plants were in flower. Throughout the Oomra circle the weather continued bright and seasonable, and bolls were appearing on the plants in all the districts the flowering being advanced. The crop continued to flourish in seasonable weather at Broach and could scarcely look better; and from the Dhollera circle the previous favourable reports were confirmed. About half-an-inch more rain had fallen at Bellary and nearly 2¼ inches at Hubli since the middle of last week, and more was wanted in the former district, while in the latter, prospects were improving.

Yesterday's telegrams from the districts reported a continuance of bright, seasonable weather with no sign of rain over almost the whole of the area, and the crop was flourishing under the favouring circumstances, the plants showing bolls at Agra, Cawnpore, and Beawar in the Bengal circle. In the Oomra circle also bolls were appearing on the plants in all the districts, and were rapidly ripening at Barsee, where the crop was stated to be excellent; and in the Dhollera circle, the plants were healthy and in flower at Wadwan, while in the Bhownugger district the flowering was advanced. More rain was still wanted at Bellary; but at Hubli, in the Dharwa circle, prospects were generally good.

The following are to-day's quotations for full-pressed Cotton with the equivalents in Sterling, Cost, and Freight to Liverpool, via Canal, without Commission, viz:—

CROP PROSPECTS IN BURMAH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

RANGOON, Oct. 23.

The results of the tour of the Financial Commissioner and the Chief Engineer in the distressed districts have been published in a long memorandum by the former. Altogether the outlook is very hopeful. A large fall in price must not, however, he thinks, be expected till the middle or the end of December, when paddy will be harvested. By February, if all goes well, the price of food should drop considerably, and relief works should be no longer necessary.

VANITY FAIR.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Oct. 2.

"Il nous faut de l'audace, encore de l'audace, et toujours de l'audace!"

The event of the week—not one of our usual stock-in-trade horrors, a mining disaster, a factory fire, a railway smash, or a collision at sea—General Boulanger's death, recalls the inscription on the recently erected monument to Danton in Paris. It requires audacity—an unknown quantity of audacity—to effect the political regeneration of a country or a people. Fortunately or unfortunately, according to the opinions we hold, Boulanger's audacity failed; so losing courage to face a blighted life and believing his name, le brav' general has ended his career by suicide.

How very short a time it is since, attracted by the clatter of French tongues hissing and cheering, we watched him shoot up like a brilliant rocket into the perturbed air of French politics—then in a little while came an explosion, followed by a shower of falling sparks, and finally this week with a faint crackle like a spent firework, he has gone out. The whole affair was like a theatrical spectacle. It might easily have been dramatised by Ibsen, with the cruel æstheticism of a Hedda Gabbler to plan the picturesque details. Where could one find more interesting dramatis personæ, or more admirable scenic effects than in the different glimpses we have had of Boulanger's surroundings. Sometimes we see the General riding his black horse to the inspiriting music of "En revenant de la Revue," or the still more enlivening vivats of the Parisian populace. Then we see him making his daily call on his aged mother. After which the scene shifts to the Bois de Boulogne, where the General drives with his friend in a carriage decorated with crimson oeillets, while Madame Boulanger and her daughters sit in solitude at home. Finally, the curtain goes down as the General lies dead of a pistol wound, self-inflicted with a Government pistol, in the shadow of the broken column that marks the dainty flower-trimmed grave of his ladylove Madame Bonnemain. Is it the romantic or theatrical habit of mind that we have acquired in spite of our life long instruction in the immorality and illegality of suicide, that makes us see a fitness in Boulanger's self-destruction? It is a strangely unpractical phase in the British character to think death preferable to a gigantic failure. In the life of General Boulanger, published a couple of years ago by Messrs. Swan Sonnenschein and Co., it is said that Georges Ernest Jean Marie Boulanger was born at Rennes on the 29th April, 1837, and named by his mother after George Washington. M. Boulanger, the father of the General, was a solicitor at Rennes, but sold his practice and took an appointment in Paris, which he resigned after some years, retiring to Villa d'Avray, near Paris, where he settled down until his death in 1884.

Mdme. Boulanger, the General's mother, is of a Welsh family, named Griffiths, and is still living. She resides with her brother and her niece in the Avenue Breteuil, near the Hotel des Invalides, and, though over eighty years of age, is still able to mount up the three flights of stairs to her apartment without needing a rest on the way. The General was fondly attached to his mother, and when in Paris never missed a day without seeing her. Since his exile he had kept up the same affectionate regard, writing every day to his mother and eagerly looking for her letters. While in London, the General attended the early services at the Roman Catholic Church, Spanish Place, but in consequence of his death by his own hand the priests in Brussels are prohibited from reading the burial service at his grave. The funeral, which will take place on Saturday, will probably attract immense crowds, and, to avoid disturbance, numbers of police have been constantly on guard in the graveyard at Ixelles.

Following the announcement of General Boulanger's death, comes notice of the publication of a novel by the Duchesse d'Uzes, who has been so closely associated with the General's schemes. The Duchess writes under the pseudonym Maanels, and the title is "Julien Masly;" and coming at so favourable a moment, when the memory of the Boulanger connection has been revived in people's minds, the book, whatever its merits, will hardly fail to attract attention. The Duchess is said to be an accomplished musician and artist, and, if her romance proves a success, she promises that it will be followed quickly by others. Talking to a lady friend, she said: "I do not know whether I deceived myself, but I thought I was able to do something honourable without pretending to create a re-action against that pornography which is so often preferred before elegance. And then who knows? If each one brings his grain of sand, we may at last be able to stem the current."

When Queens and Duchesses who have no need to do so dabble in literature, one cannot be surprised at children taking to it, like young ducks to water. The children's page in the weekly papers is now an established fact, and poems, tales, and essays from young scribblers are as plentiful as the most ardent advocate of the educational movement could desire. Lady Aberdeen has set mothers at home an example of go-aheadness in literary matters by helping her child to edit a juvenile paper with the fascinatingly fresh title, "Wee Willie Winkie." But in New York children take the matter entirely into their own hands. The Sunny Hour, is a paper edited by a boy of fourteen, and, unlike his brothers in the profession, his aims are purely philanthropic, the proceeds being devoted altogether to the needs of poor boys, especially towards clothing the naked in the line of boots. But this young editor has a different method of managing his affairs from the Common or Garden Editor. Instead of paying for contributions, he exacts them at the point of the bayonet. All sorts and conditions of men are on his staff, and kings, queens, and famous men and women help to make his pages interesting. Osman Pasha sent an essay, Carmen Sylva contributed a poem, and others who have no literary capacity have given their mite in the shape of autographs and photos. The editorial den of this remarkable boy is said to be full of trophies of his success, and the leaders of Society have asked him to their receptions and made a lion of him. Unfortunately, success is not everything—hard work has broken down even this fourteen-year-old constitution, and the Sunny Hour will have to undergo a partial eclipse, while Master Iello d'Apery enjoys a spell of idleness. Even in America, all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

To encourage French exploration, a lady in the South of France has just left a fortune of £320,000 to any Frenchman who may succeed in organizing a caravan of five hundred of his compatriots and penetrating farther than any one has ever done into the interior of Africa. The will is to be disputed by the lady's relatives. It might be wiser if they clubbed together to organize the caravan and saved law expenses.

Our paternal Government undoubtedly tries to do its duty; but it is a pity it does not recognize the justice of paying its sons and daughters equally for equal work. A shorthand writer and typist to the Royal Commission on Labour is paid two guineas a week, and the Commissioners, finding that a lady excelled all other competitors, appointed her to the post. When the Treasury learned that it was employing a woman, it immediately reduced the salary to thirty-five shillings a week! There was no question of underselling or inferiority. The lady was appointed expecting the usual salary, and it was not till the sex of the employée was discovered that the Treasury reduced the pay. Hearth and Home comments on the Government injustice and recommends women to try the new world. But that will hardly mend our wicked ways in the old, will it?

On the other hand merit is sometimes recognised even in miserable womankind. The head of the postal department in Gibraltar is Miss Cresswell, who is paid £700 a year, and, according to a connoisseur in such things, "She is well worth the money."

Another evidence of heredity in literature will be shortly given by the appearance of a story in Harper's Magazine from the pen of Miss Hildegarde Hawthorne, the grand-daughter of the famous Nathaniel Hawthorne.

TWO VIEWS OF LIFE.

I.

THE CUP OF LIFE.

(FROM THE RUSSIAN OF LERMANTOF.)

We drink the cup of life—while yet
Our eyes are bandaged tightly,
The golden brim with tears is wet,
With tear-drops sparkles brightly;

But when the bandage falls from eyes
As Death appears before us,
Then all the sweet enchantment flies,
That held dominion o'er us,

Then we perceive the golden cup
Was empty—empty ever—
That fancy filled the goblet up,
And ours the draught was—never.

II.

LIFE.

(FROM THE RUSSIAN OF KLUSHNIKOF.)

A fleeting gift—a lovely gift—
Life—wherefore given to me?
Head answers not; "Life's given to live,"
The Heart makes answer free.

In God's world all is beautiful!
For He's in it concealed;
But in the feelings—in the song—
In reason—He's revealed.

To know Him in His Universe
To see in soul, revere,
This means in truth to live with God,
And that's Life's meaning here!

THE RUSSIANS AND THE CHINESE IN LITTLE TIBET.

[BY HENRY LANSDELL, D.D., M.R.A.S., F.R.G.S.]

IV.—YENGI HISSAR AND YARKAND.

At sunrise, on the day after leaving Kashgar, we reached Yengi Hissar, or, as its name implies, "Newcastle." The town cannot boast an antiquity comparable with that of Aksu; but dates, nevertheless, from the Mahomedan conquest. The surrounding district extends some 20 miles from East to West, the oasis being watered by the little river Shahnaz. Like the other cities of Chinese Turkistan it comprises a Turkish and a Chinese town, the latter, in this case, being one of the principal forts in the country. Making our way to the Turkish town, we took apartments in the caravanserai, where I quickly mounted to the roof to take a photograph of the neighbouring Chinese fort. This fort is about 500 yards square, with a ditch 50 feet wide, and perhaps 20 deep. The walls are of mud, about 25 feet high and as many thick, with flanking projections, some of them pierced by gateways; and all around is a parapet 7 feet high, crenelated, and with loopholes. Within the fort are few houses but mud walls divide off several defensive enclosures for troops and storehouses. Above the walls are seen towers with pagoda-looking roofs, reminding one, on a small scale, of the walls of Peking. Yengi Hissar is administered by three Chinese Mandarins and six Turki Beks. As we intended to make only a short stay I did not visit the authorities, but sent for the Russian Aksakal to procure what we needed and accompany us about the town. This, however, proved doubtful policy; for the crowd, seeing me on the roof with my camera, wondered what it meant, and flocked around in such crowds as to be quite disagreeable. One Chinaman appeared to consider himself sorely injured, because, having entered my room unbidden, I ordered him to leave. Even the two attendants furnished as escort had difficulty in restraining the curiosity of the crowd, and we came near enough to quarrelling to show me two things; first, that a crowd of Chinese when angry or even when displeased is a very ugly thing for a foreigner single-handed to deal with; and next, I saw unmistakeably how my Turki servants were afraid of their Chinese conquerors. I was wicked enough to ask the Turkis, from time to time, whether they preferred the Mahomedan Government of Yakub Khan or that of the Chinese. With Asiatic caution, they usually answered guardedly. Thus, one of the escort replied "Yes, we should prefer Mahomedan rule, but it has not pleased God to give it." Moreover, he said the heart of the Chinese was good; and that they took dues from the rich, but were not exacting from the poor. Thus, he added, the villages round Kashgar, in the time of Yakub Khan were impoverished, but under the Chinese they are better off, their present masters not levying taxes for melons and small garden produce as did Yakub Khan. On the other hand, we heard elsewhere, that whereas the traders under Yakub Khan were taxed once for all, and at the rate of 1 in 40; they were now charged 1 in 16, and groaned under the number of custom-houses repeated in every district. So that, if a man would travel round the valley, say from Turfan to Khotan, with 100 jing of wool, which cost 45 tongas, the seven custom-houses he would have to pass would exact 35 tongas more. Fruit, they said, was taxed at the rate of 10 per cent.; and when corn was needed by the Government the authorities took it at their own valuation which was always low, and if the owners complained they were put in prison. So also, a soldier, or one employed by the Government, would stop in the bazaar at a shop and eat what he pleased and then, if the shopkeeper objected, would administer a beating. No justice, they said, could be obtained by the natives; and foreign traders complained that under the Chinese they could recover no debts. Where the truth lay between these opposing statements it is hard to say. My servant Joseph remarked that he thought the Turkis in Chinese service spoke well of their masters to me for fear of being reported if they spoke to the contrary. He instanced one of the Beks, or petty officials at Kashgar, who had praised to him the Chinese rulers, whereas I, from another source happened to know of that very man that he with others, had written a revolutionary letter, and affixed his seal, expressing desire for a change of Government, and asking that the Russians would come and take the country.

Looking about the town for objects to photograph, we came to a Chinese Gaukha, or mortuary pile, raised to the memory (whether over the body I am not sure) of a great Mandarin not long dead. It was little more than a heap of mud rising above a circular platform, with a finial, the whole surrounded with an open-work clay fence. It was the first Buddhist monument of any kind we had seen in the country; so thoroughly have the Mahomedans effaced all trace of the ancient religion that here preceded theirs. A few miles west of the town at Chuchan Padshah is a large cemetery containg the dust of ten thousand warriors in the Mahomedan cause. This renders Yengi Hissar interesting in this connection as being near the scene of the great struggle for mastery between Mahomedanism and Buddhism, the latter of which collapsed at the end of about 20 years' struggle, on the conquest of Khotan, its chief seat in Chinese Turkistan. The re-appearance of Buddhism, though not a persecuting religion like their own, is not, of course, to the Mahomedans' taste and, though not interfered with, I believe, religiously, I heard sore complaints because the Turkis, when riding and meeting a Chinese dignitary, were made to dismount as a sign of respect, as also before certain emblems of Imperial authority. But in telling me this they seemed completely oblivious that this is the very thing the Mahomedan ruler of Bokhara is at this moment inflicting on his Jewish subjects. I found the Jews in Bokhara forbidden to wear a garment of silk for instance, with a belt and a turban (like a local gentleman); but compelled to go about in a cotton khalat and a black calico cap and to be girded with only a piece of string. Again they may not ride a horse in the city, and even in the fields, are made to dismount if only from an ass, before a mounted Mahomedan, who may strike the Jew if he pleases, but the Jew may not retaliate. So bitter indeed is the cup wrung out to the Jew in Bokhara that he looks enviously at his comrades under Russian rule in Samarkand, and regards them as in clover; and would be only too delighted that the Russians should annex Bokhara to-morrow. But these Mahomedans on the other side of the Tian Shan, are sorely perturbed when, by the Chinese, a little of the same cup is poured out to them. The persecuted, however, are, in one thing, alike, in that both profess to wish for Russian rule. With wily diplomacy, they said to me in Aksu, "All are praying that the Russians or the English would take the country;" and I was told in Kashgar, that the Turkish children in the streets sing, under the very noses of the Chinese, a song having a refrain ending with the equivalent of "Three Cheers for the Coming of the Czar." Thanks, indeed, to the residence of a Russian Consul, and his activity in looking after the interests of Russian subjects, I have no hesitation in saying that in the north and west of Chinese Turkistan Russia is the head and we are the tail; but this was reversed, I thought, on reaching Yarkand and Khotan, where the people seemed unmistakeably to prefer an Englishman to a Russian.

Up to Kashgar we had received so much kindness through Russian influence in general, and Mr. Petrowsky in particular, that it seemed like going among strangers when, after four days' journey, we approached Yarkand, where the only Englishman of the place, Mr. Dalgleish, has been recently murdered. A horseman was sent some minutes ahead to announce our coming, which had for effect the bringing out from the authorities a deputation consisting of one Muhammud Ali, who called himself Aksakal of the Kashmiris, and several of his compatriots who were British subjects. The Aksakal's country house was placed at our disposal, and was the best building we inhabited throughout the country, but it had the disadvantage of being in the suburbs and away from native life and bustle. Moreover, the chief Mandarin being absent, his next in command would not take upon himself the grave responsibility of allowing me to take photographs of the town. On our second visit, therefore, to Yarkand, we took up quarters in the city in the house formerly inhabited by Mr. Dalgleish. The country about Yarkand is so flat as to render it difficult to get a general view of the town. The best spot for this purpose was a slight elevation near the wall, called Naurus Dung, whence we could see towards the east a wide extent of orchards and fields. Numerous cemeteries also were visible; and one could follow for a long distance the dilapidated wall 20 feet high, crenelated at the top, with flanking projections at intervals, and said to be four miles in circuit. From the top of Mr. Dalgleish's house was obtained a view of the neighbouring roofs, and yards, and gardens, with here and there a domed structure indicating some kind of religious building as a mosque or college; but the prospect was suggestive of anything but urban magnificence. Twenty years ago, the Forsyth report estimated the population of Yarkand at a maximum of 35,000. Now, the Yamen books are said to give a population of 29,000 families in all, or say nearly 150,000 souls; so that between the two there is ample room for the right of private judgment, and I should guess the former number nearer the truth. According to Forsyth's account there were in the City "38 large colleges and mosques" which reads grandly, but on being visited they were found disappointing; for compared with the ruins of Samarkand, to say nothing of the mosques of India, not one of them was worth looking at. I photographed the mosque, or chapel, of Abdullah Khan madressa or college; but "college" must not be taken to mean an institution full of merry boys and youths being educated for the business of life, but rather (though not exactly) a collection of cells for quasi-monks who stop at school for twenty, thirty, or forty years reading chiefly the Koran, in connection with which a grand feat is to be able to say it off by heart, the understanding it being quite a secondary [illegible] the fortress."

matter. The colleges we visited appeared to be nearly empty; and education throughout the country is deplorably low. The best result of what a Mussulman should be was given me as consisting of four points, namely, he should, (1) write well, (2) dress becomingly, (3) speak clearly and advisedly; and then (4) he will please everybody! I was moreover advised that if missionaries were introduced into the country, the opening of good schools would be a great attraction, and something very sorely needed. There are three Mandarins at Yarkand of whom the chief is called an Amban. I visited this official in the Chinese town after my return from Khotan and found him agreeable and obliging, or at all events, not obstructive. He allowed me to photograph not only what I pleased in the town, but he sat for his own portrait near the curious octagonal entrance to his private garden, his Chinese and Turki suite being arranged on either hand. He even put his head under the focussing cloth of the camera to see what it was all about, not greatly I fear to his own enlightment, but much to the quiet amusement of his retinue who dared not relax more than to smile behind his back, and immediately return to their imperturbable facial stolidity on the re-appearance of their lord's countenance.

After taking the Amban's picture I proceeded to do the same of the outer entrance of his yamen, or Government House. The great doors, (at the sides of which were painted huge figures or warders) were thrown open that my party might march through with honour. This opened a vista to other doors within and improved the picture. The crowds meanwhile came about us like bees, but were kept at bay by a lictor, who with his long heavy whip at a word from one of us, laid about him in style, the Turkis humbly submitting, and laughing heartily when the lash did not come down upon their own backs. Near the entrance was a wooden cage called the kuhza for hanging culprits by inches, the neck being secured through a hole in a board placed on the top, whilst the feet rest on a pole than can be gradually lowered till the suspended culprit dies of exhaustion. Thus far, from Aksu, we had been travelling over ground made known to English readers by the Forsyth Missions of 1870 and 1873 and the recent travels of Carey, Younghusband and Bell. None of these, however, crossed the desert between Yarkand and Khotan, and this journey of six days fell to my lot to be the first Englishman to accomplish. Khotan, therefore, will be the subject of my next letter.

MISS POTTINGER'S WEDDING.

"On their wedding day, all Poona was gay
A fairer bride was never seen, we say."

Something to this effect was sung by Clementina in "Robert Macaire," and we cannot do better than quote the couplet in describing one of the grandest weddings we have ever had in Poona, and which took place on Wednesday evening at "Polo Vista," the residence of General and Mrs. Pottinger. The marriage ceremony was performed in St. Mary's Church, which was very tastefully decorated for the occasion. The Church was crowded not only by the large number of guests, but by a very fair gathering of the Poona public, with whom Captain Hobday and Miss Pottinger have always been such popular favorites. The Rev. M. Lochee, Chaplain of Kirkee, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Beck, Chaplain of St. Mary's, conducted the marriage service, which was a full choral one. As soon as the bride who was most exquisitely dressed arrived at the church with her father, General Pottinger, the choir burst forth with the Hymn, "The Voice that breathed o'er Eden." This was sung as the bridal procession moved up the aisle. The bridesmaids were the bride's four sisters, Misses May, Rose, Irene, and Dorothy Pottinger, who looked very charming in their snow white dresses, each wearing a pretty gold brooch, in form of a gun and carriage, the gift of the bride-groom. The bride and bride-groom, having taken their usual place at the altar rails, the former, attended by her father and the bridesmaids, and the latter by Captain Allison, the "best man," the interesting service was proceeded with, and at the close Miss Wiseman, officiating organist of St Mary's, played the Wedding March, and the newly married couple walked back together to the vestry, where the necessary signatures were then taken in the marriage registers. In the meantime a phaeton with three postillions (Messrs. Stevens, Kelly and McMunn of the R.A.) was driven up to the Church door for Captain and Mrs. Hobday, who on getting into the carriage were greeted with a shower of rice, two trumpeters at the same time sounding the "Salute." The happy pair were then driven off followed by Sergeant-Major Gillan and Qr.-Mr.-Sergeant Haines of the R.A. as escort. The wedding party next assembled at "Polo Vista," where the time-honored custom, among the military, of the bride cutting the wedding cake with the bridegroom's sword, was followed. The Hon ble Mr. G. Moore proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom, in a very happy little speech in which he said that he thought it was perfectly right that he should have been asked to perform this duty, since he was present at the wedding of General and Mrs. Pottinger at Karachi, and that it was a great pleasure to him to be present now at the wedding of their eldest daughter. He spoke of the bride's excellent graces and qualities and said that Captain Hobday was a very lucky fellow in having such a charming wife; he also warmly eulogised the bridegroom, and said that the bride, too, in return was very fortunate in having such a good, clever, and accomplished husband. He observed that all present were well aware of the immense success the newly married couple had but recently gained in the theatrical world in their excellent performances of Faust and Robert Macaire, and he hoped that great, if not greater, success may attend them on the world's stage and on the stage of married life on which they had just entered. Mr. Moore concluded by asking all present to drink long life and prosperity to Captain and Mrs. Hobday, a toast which was responded to in the warmest and most enthusiastic manner possible, by one and all. Captain Hobday, in replying, begged to thank the guests for their kind wishes, on behalf of himself and his wife, and said that he had no doubt but that, although the new drama of the Happy Couple they had just undertaken, was still unrehearsed, it would certainly prove as successful as could be wished. Mr. Hammet was in attendance and took a photograph of the wedding group, including the guests. Captain and Mrs. Hobday soon after this left for Kurrackwasla amidst a tremendous shower of rice and slippers and with the best wishes of the whole company. The Band of the 55th Field Battery, R. A., played a choice programme of music during the evening and both General and Mrs. Pottinger must have been delighted, even though parting with their eldest daughter, at the immense success which attended the wedding.—Poona Observer.

Y. M. C. A. CONCERT.

A CONCERT was given last evening in the Young Men's Christian Association, Apollo Bunder Rooms, in aid of the funds of the Association. There was a very fair attendance, but considering the excellence of the programme and the object of the concert a much larger audience might have been expected. The concert passed off most successfully and proved thoroughly enjoyable, although some disappointment was felt at the non-appearance of Mr. Anderson Clarke, who was unfortunately suffering from a severe cold. Miss Tudball was in splendid form; her name was down on the programme for only two songs, but she sang four, being enthusiastically encored on each of her two appearances and responding. She first gave "Marguerita," which she rendered with exquisite sweetness and being recalled sang with equal acceptance "Listen to the Voice of Love." An even more artistic rendering was "Should He Upbraid," and again she was recalled. Miss Waller displayed great taste in her singing of "The Song and the Singer" and "The Garden of Sleep," and also took the vocal part in Braga's Serenata. Mr. W. T. Carroll playing the concertina and Mr. Waite officiating at the piano. It was an admirable performance and was, as a consequence, loudly applauded. Mr. Carroll also played on the concertina with fine expressiveness "Old Memories" arranged by himself. Mr. H. E. Harrington who was in good voice made a marked hit in his singing of "The Lifeboatman," which was given with all due dramatic effect. Mr. F. W. J. Vining besides doing duty as accompanist to many of the songs, gave a solo himself, "In a Soft Summer Twilight," and took part with Mr. Harrington in the duet "My Boat is waiting here for Thee." Mr. Vining, it should also be mentioned, opened the concert with a very effective rendering on the pianoforte of Coward's "Funeral March of a Marionette." The cornet solo of Mr. Aubrey Rhodes "The Song that reached My Heart," was played most masterfully, and Mr. F. W. Blodwell gave an me to give evidence regarding what passed between us in those communications would be distinctly contrary to public policy.

I wish, however, to add that if the counsel for the defence will mention any particular matter of fact regarding which he supposes I have learned anything from my communications with His Highness or His Highness' officials and can show me (privately if he wishes) that there are reasons for believing that it is material in the interests of the accused to have that matter of fact proved and that he has, after all reasonable endeavours, failed to obtain evidence of that matter of fact from any other source, I should feel it my duty, so far as that matter of fact is concerned, to reconsider my position after referring to His Highness, and perhaps (if I felt a doubt about my duty) consulting other persons more competent to judge on so very delicate a point than myself. My own belief—and I am now pretty familiar with the details of the case—is that there is absolutely no matter of fact in the predicament above described, but in this I may, of course, be mistaken. I have further to add that when any particular matter that has passed between myself and His Highness has been disclosed by him in his evidence, that particular matter is in my opinion subject to somewhat different considerations.

It was for this reason, as the learned counsel for the defence is aware, that I expressly asked him to examine His Highness on all particulars he desired to ascertain regarding the interview between His Highness and myself.

REVIEWS.

CAPTAIN HAYES'S WORKS.

New editions—the fourth—have been issued by Messrs. Thacker, Spink and Co., of Captain M. H. Hayes's "Veterinary Notes for Horse Owners," and —the third—of his "Riding: On the Flat and Across Country." Both have been considerably enlarged. The "Veterinary Notes" comprise a good deal of new matter, and about twenty additional subjects are treated. The book remains almost without exception the handiest and most useful work of reference for the horse-owner; for use in India it has no rival. The new edition of "Riding" has undergone much more extensive change. Captain Hayes and Mrs. Hayes are bringing out a book to be called "the Horse-Women," and, accordingly, they have omitted the chapter on "Ladies's Riding." But more than equivalent new matter and illustrations have been inserted, prominent amongst it being paragraphs relating to the seat and the "indications" of the hands and legs, riding without reins, and instructions for riding buck-jumpers and vicious horses. A chapter on military riding and another on the training of polo ponies are quite new, as are many of the illustrations. It is rather late in the day to sing the praises of so well known a book as this, and it will be sufficient to say that no better work on the subject exists, and that it holds its own against both of its recent rivals.

"THE FIRST TO CAST A STONE."

Among the latest additions to Anglo-Indian literature is a short novel with the above title, printed at the Lawrence Asylum Press and introduced to the public without the chaperonage of any publishing firm. The plot is flimsy, the incidents are stereotyped, and the style is crude, vulgar, and frequently ungrammatical; in fact, the book would have made an excellent feuilleton for Bow Bells or the London Journal. Nevertheless, it is lively and interesting, and is almost sure to obtain a wide sale, though its success will be due to its peculiarities and a certain riskiness rather than to its merits. As in most Anglo-Indian fiction the Seventh Commandment plays rather an important part in the story. The opening scene is laid in the Cantonment of Khalsapore, a station on the Afghan Frontier, and the dramatis personæ are all more or less intimately connected with Carlton's Irregular Horse. The Colonel's daughter, Eva Fosbrooke, a young lady with a remarkably high bust and a character "modelled on a sound moral basis" by a maiden aunt, has been jilted by Captain Carr of her father's regiment. Captain Carr goes home and marries an actress, who is not altogether a nice person, and his wife becomes the subject of the stoning alluded to in the title through an indiscretion in which she is assisted by "one of the handsomest men in the Service, with lots to say for himself, any amount of brass, a private fortune, and an Honourable to boot." Add to these incidents the repentance and rehabilitation of Mrs. Carr, her death in child-birth, and recommendation in articulo mortis of Eva Fosbrooke as her successor—a recommendation which is acted upon to the satisfaction of both parties concerned—and we have before us the main points of the plot. The author, who writes under the nom-de-plume of "Nemo," says it was his lot to hear of the painful domestic dilemma he describes when stationed on one of our Indian frontiers a few years ago. So presumably his local coloring and types are true to nature, which is much to be regretted.

THE INDIAN LAW OF EASEMENTS.

We have received a copy of the Law of Easements and Licenses in India by R. B. Michell, Esq., M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law and Advocate of the High Court of Madras. The book, which is published by Higginbotham and Co., is an excellently got-up volume, giving the text of the Indian Easements Act, Act V. of 1882, followed by commentaries and annotations under each of the sections, noting up to date all the important decisions both from the English and the Indian Law Reports. The Bill, which ultimately became the Indian Easements Act, was drawn up originally by the Hon'ble Mr. Whitley Stokes, and was, after undergoing considerable alterations, passed into law in 1882. It has belied the expectations of some critics, who said that instead of lessening it would promote litigations. The Act, which was until now in force only in the Presidency of Madras, Coorg, and the Central Provinces, has been recently extended to the Presidency of Bombay, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh by Act VIII. of 1891. The extension of the Act to Bengal and the rest of British India is not unlikely to take place within a short time. The importance of the enactment, as affecting such a large extent of British India, and the hitherto generally vague character of the subject it deals with, have made the appearance of a text book like that of Mr. Michell of much service to the profession and the public in general. Before this Act was passed the Indian Statutory Law was silent on the subject of the rights which a person enjoyed over an immovable property on account of his ownership of another, and Judges, like the late Chief Justice of Bombay, Sir Michael Westropp, and others had expressed their opinion that it was desirable to codify the law on the subject which was then "for the most part to be found only in treatises and reports practically inaccessible to a large proportion of the legal profession in the Mofussil and to the Subordinate Judges." The principles of English Law on which the law as to rural and urban servitudes was leased were neither properly understood by the people themselves nor by the majority of the Courts who had to determine disputes concerning them by the application of those principles. The passing of this Act has removed the uncertainty which was thus attached to the law on the subject. The Act is based on the English Law, which was held to be applicable in India on account of its just and equitable character. In the present enactment a few deviations have been made from the English Law, and rules as to some matters, which had not hitherto been settled by the English or Indian Courts, have been adopted in it from the writings of modern jurists. Mr. Michell has in his volume noted these differences under each of the appropriate sections and pointed out their character.

BOMBAY ROVERS' ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL TOURNAMENT.

The above tournament will be played off in Bombay, beginning on the 23rd November, 1891. The tournament will be played under the Association Football Rules for 1891. A handsome sterling silver challenge cup, valued at £70, to be held by the winning team for twelve months, will be competed for. The tournament is open to teams from all bona-fide clubs in India or Burma, whether civil, military, or naval. Scratch teams will not be permitted to enter. In the case of military teams not more than one battalion of infantry, one regiment of cavalry, or four batteries of artillery will be permitted to combine to form a team. Entries close on the 10th November, 1891. The entrance fee is rupees eleven per team. The ties will be drawn on the evening of the 11th November, 1891, and the results will be immediately communicated to the teams concerned. Further information may be had on applying to Mr. C. W. Lauder, joint honorary secretary, Rovers' Association Football Tournament.

Mr. W. J. Stillman, the well-known American writer, throws some light upon those complaints of the late Mr. Lowell's "indifference to the social pretensions of Americans in London" of which something was heard during the American Minister's sojourn among us. Mr. Stillman, who was in London during great part of that time, tells us that Americans inflated by a local importance came to London wearing their Congressional-district halos, and expected to be presented to the Queen, wearing them. Mr. Lowell, measuring them by the larger standard of a Court where all the world comes, declined to use his great personal influence to the disregard of that standard. His feeling was that no American, because he is such, is entitled to a presentation at Court or an introduction to English society, but that it is for the Queen in one case, and society in the other, to choose whom they will see. Mr. Lowell was otherwise, we learn, a resolute stickler for etiquette. In the matter of "calling first" according to Mr. Stillman, he drew the line at marquises. A lady of rank, at whose house Mr. Stillman was visiting once expressed the desire to make the acquaintance of the Minister, and he undertook to make him acquainted with her wish. Mr. Lowell inquired her rank, and as she was a marchioness, he replied, "I cannot, as Minister Plenipotentiary, make the first call on anything less than a duke; the marquis must make the first call."

MR. DADABHAI NAOROJI IN CENTRAL FINSBURY.

In addressing a meeting of the Central Finsbury Liberal and Radical Council on the 1st inst., Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji claimed that he might say without exaggeration that they had before them in his humble efforts to represent his own country the greatest cause that they, Britons, had ever undertaken. (Applause.) Let them glance through the pages of their history from its earliest-recorded epoch, from the time when Cæsar invaded the shores of this country down to the present day, and he challenged any person to point out a single cause to which they had, in popular phrase, placed their shoulders and devoted their sympathies and succour, that could equal in interest or importance or even approach in these attributes the one great cause which they had now determined to take in hand through his humble representation of his own country in the Imperial Parliament. (Great cheering.) It is the cause, as their friend the chairman had truly said, not of 1,000,000, 5,000,000, 10,000,000, but of hundreds of millions of people. (Applause.) Aye, it is the cause of one-fifth of the whole human race. (Hear, hear.) If, therefore, there is a cause that has been undertaken by a great people, by an advancing people, by humane people that cause is the one into which they had launched themselves at the present time in Central Finsbury. (Applause.) He did not say that they should look to the commercial merits only of the success of such a cause at their hands; but as every great work has its reward, by doing justice to a great and noble race, their name would be handed down and revered as an historical monument, and countless blessings would be invoked on their nation by universal humanity. (Applause.) He had already said by doing justice to a great and noble race—a race, which they must remember was at the acme of the highest pitch of culture and civilization, when Britain was immersed in barbarism and ignorance; aye and was noted for its lore and learning centuries before the conquering legions of Cæsar added their island home to the world-wide domains of Rome. Centuries, long centuries before this epoch India and its people stood unequalled in many respects in civilization and those attributes that constituted a polished and humane race. Unfortunately, however, owing to the encroachments of hostile and invading states and the sad results of foreign power and domination, the people of India had, to a certain extent, deteriorated from the lofty summit they once occupied in the world's history. If, however, Western civilisation would only go over and pay the great debt they had in former ages received from India, its native and grateful races would rise up and bless its name and bless humanity. (Immense cheering.) With truth then he might say that they in Central Finsbury, especially, had a great work before them; but as he had already observed a great and good work and a just work will require all the exertions of every nerve and will require every possible courage to fight it to a successful end, for never had a great and worthy cause been brought to victory by indifference, coldness, apathy, or cowardice. Now, they were aware that during the three years he had spoken of, they had had many difficulties to impede and hinder them, but they kept on their onward course, steady and steadfast, going forward to the goal. (Applause.) As far as he was concerned whatever the labour and turmoil, and they all must admit he had had his share of them during the last three years—(hear, hear)—whatever the difficulties and obstacles in the way, his course had been one, and that a clear one, never to flinch from anything that is right, just, and honourable. (Applause.) So far as he was concerned, therefore, they might depend upon it he had not spent his time and energy, nor devoted himself to the cause of his poor country merely as child's play. He had resolved when he came and undertook this task to fight and to struggle, and to work as hard as he could and as arduously as the necessities of the occasion needed, until he achieved the object they had in view for his country and his people. He knew the difficulties he had to encounter; but he repeated his former declaration that as far as he was concerned, and he would add as far as they were concerned, and in this connection he thought he might say, "we shall go straight on in the path of duty (as the admirable report of the secretary stated it) neither looking to the right nor to the left, one way or the other, but make straight for the goal"—until, as he had no doubt, with their exertions they would land him in that place where they were so earnestly trying to get him. (Great cheering.) His whole life had been modelled upon one line of action, and that was when he had made up his mind definitely and directly as to the particular object he was aiming at—then to carry it out steadily and steadfastly. If people fight he could fight in return; but he had never considered it an honourable or a diplomatic action (diplomacy of this character he laid no claim), or as some would call it a clever process or operation by subtle artifice and craft to outwit an opponent. No! when he fought he fought honourably and never hit his foe under the belt. (Cheers.) No! he would fight him face to face in an honourable and straightforward manner. Let the consequences then be what they might those were the principles that had guided him during his whole life-time—the principles upon which he had fought many a strongly-contested battle with their Indian Government and its officials. He spoke to and of them clearly and openly whenever he thought British Administration of Indian affairs demanded such censure. British rule in India was a very despotic rule; and it was only the instinct and spirit of British love of fairplay, justice, and freedom that had kept British administration in India so long intact. Otherwise the British domination had simply deteriorated instead of raising the natives of India, as it were up to their own level. That domination had simply brought them down to the original regime of aboriginal despotism. This was a state of things not grasped at by the British mind—for the British public does not know that 225,000,000 of fellow-subjects in their own territories, besides 60,000,000 of a population in the native States were in any way domineered over and tyrannised by a despotism which was the more despicable and reprehensible, because it was inflicted under the garb of constitutionalism. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) If it were intended to be despotism, pure and simple, very good and let it be so. Let their officials and administrators honestly tell the Indian people. "You shall be treated in a dispotic fashion; you shall be kept down and not regraded as British citizens, but as British serfs and slaves," the native would, of course, have no alternative but to obey and submit. They would know, however, how to estimate British rule at its proper value and how to act. At present, however, it was nothing less than hypocrisy; but if they said what he shadowed out it would (at least save this nation from the reproach of hypocrisy. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) It would be for them, as he had said before, to submit and try what they could do next. On the other hand, however, they knew that the British public sincerely and absolutely wished that India should be governed as this nation was governed—that the people of India should have a voice in their own rule and Government just as much and as freely as every English citizen had a voice in the rule and polity of his own government. (Cheers.) When they knew that such is the wish and desire of the British public, it was that knowledge which enabled him and his fellow-countrymen to keep strong and steadfast, and to come before the great tribunal of British public opinion and fair play, tell them to their faces what their pledges had been, and ask them on the strength of these pledges, promises, and proclamations to do justice to India and the Indian people. (Applause.) It was because the latter had that faith they came before such assemblies as the present to plead their cause; if they had not that faith and confidence in British justice the people of this land might well regard them as humbugs and treat them simply as hypocrites. Mr Dadabhai, pointed out it was to the mutual interests of both peoples—English and Indian—that amicable and just international relations should be established between them; their interests and their prospects were to a large extent identical and mutual, for as he had so frequently explained previously on London platforms, by the concession of good Government to their Indian fellow-subjects, trade and commerce would be encouraged and promoted thereby: they would not have an unemployed worker here nor famished and starving citizens abroad in India. Thus British rule and supremacy in the East would be firmly established on a lasting basis and might exist to the end of time; and if ever severed, it would only be severed by an arrangement, somewhat akin to that of two brothers, leaving the parental roof to occupy separate homes, but not sundering the family tie that had fraternally bound them. (Cheers.) Let them but once give to a single individual, to a single Indian, an opportunity to go and fight his country's battles on the floor of the House of Commons, they would then see that truth and justice would prevail and maintain themselves. (Cheers.) And the result would be, as he had already told them, that mutual benefits would be conferred, and lasting amity and concord established between the peoples of both lands, and then as brethren and friends they would work for each other, benefit each other, and bless each other. (Applause.)

An extraordinary essay on "Breath" is quoted by "The Journal of Education" as having been written by a schoolboy who has attended a course of lectures in physiology. "Breath is made of air. We breathe with our lungs, our lights, our livers, and our kidneys. If it wasn't for our breath we should die when we slept. Our breath keeps the life a going through the nose, when we are asleep. Boys that stay in a room all day should not breathe. They should wait till they get outdoor. Boys in a room make carbonicide. Carbonicide is more poisonous than mad dogs. A heap of soldiers was in a black hole in India and carbonicide got in that black hole and killed nearly everyone afore morning. Girls kill the breath with corsets that squeez the diagram. Girls can't run or holler like boys because their diagram is squeezed too much. If I was a girl, I rather be a boy, so I can run and holler and have a good big diagram."

"Truly," says Mr. Alfred R. Wallace, the distinguished naturalist, in the Fortnightly Review, "the Englishman has no need to go abroad to revel in the beauty of colour as produced by flowers." In no part of America east of the Mississippi is there to be seen, in his opinion, such a succession of floral beauty as in many parts of England. The daffodils, hyacinths, and primroses of spring, the rich golden gorse bushes which so stirred the heart of the great Linnæus, and later on the clear yellow broom of our commons and railway banks lead the way in this succession of beautiful displays. Then come the red "Ragged-robin," the purple and rosy orchises of our marshes and meadows, the gay scarlet poppies of our cornfields and dry slopes, the spikes of fox-gloves in the copses, followed by "the most beautiful sight of all," the brilliant sheets of purple heather, alternating with the tender green of the young bracken on the mountain slopes of Wales or on the heather of Surrey and Dorset.

DR. MACKENZIE ON SMOKING CONCERTS.

Dr. A. C. Mackenzie has been discoursing of musical matters to the members of the Clef Club in Birmingham. It has been hinted, it appears, that the efforts of the club to get the public to lend a sympathetic ear to "the purest of instrumental music"—chamber music—have not met with the encouragement they deserve; but, as the President of the Royal Academy of Music observed, it is well known in all countries that delicate and refined music appeals very much more strongly to the educated minority than the great masses. The complaint, he reminded them, is as old as the days of the Greek musician who, disgusted at the apathy of his fellow-citizens, went out into the public gardens and played his solos to the statues of the gods. Dr. Mackenzie approves of the club's smoking concert programmes, and the more so because he has generally found that the tobacco at similar gatherings has been better than the music. Dr. Mackenzie amused his audience by announcing that he had noted a mysterious connection between chamber music, particularly string quartettes, and oysters. A great many of his friends regularly attend quartette practice, and the next day he has found them most enthusiastic. They rave about Beethoven in C sharp minor, and Brahms in G minor, but (he added) there is a lingering appreciation of the oysters, which often causes him to doubt whether their love is not equally divided between foreign masters and the best natives.

THE FIRST PROVINCIAL NEWSPAPER.

Indulging in pleasant reminiscences, a journalist gives in this week's Speaker an amusing account from personal knowledge of the early days of the first provincial daily newspaper in England, The Northern Daily Express. This, the first penny daily outside London, was started at Darlington in 1855 by a gentleman named Watson, who two years later transferred it to Newcastle. The ground floor and the basement of a house had been hired by Mr. Watson, and here his daily paper was every morning produced. In the cellar was the one printing-press which was needed for the issue of the paper. The two rooms on the ground floor were occupied by all the other different departments. From one of these the editor sent forth leading articles in which, we are assured, the people of Newcastle found "trenchant criticism, sharp animadversion, and brilliant rhetoric." The one reporter of the journal was the first to allow the public men of the North to taste the joys of verbatim reporting. The two men together produced everything original which appeared in The Express. The editor subsequently moved to Edinburgh, and one day he was found seated at his desk dead, his pen in his hand, and an unfinished leading article on the table before him. Later still, evil days fell upon the paper, and its place was taken by others.

HENRY IRVING AND HIS TUTOR.

Mr. Henry Irving has of late been giving us interesting reminiscences of his first introduction to the boards. His tutor in those distant days was a certain William Hoskins, a member of the company that Samuel Phelps gathered around him at Sadler's Wells. Hoskins emigrated to Australia, became an actor-manager on the goldfields, made and lost fortunes in quick succession, and eventually settled down in Melbourne. He was the finest Shakespearean actor of his time on the colonial stage. Soon after his death about five years ago, there was a crowded meeting of the profession in the Melbourne Princess's Theatre to erect a memorial in his honor. A cable message from London was handed to the chairman. It was a request to be put down for £100, and was signed "Henry Irving."

THE TAGLIONI FAMILY.

The recent death of a niece and namesake of the great Taglioni has led to inquiry as to the elder branches of this famous family. Carlo Taglioni, the real founder of the line, was, it seems, born in the earlier half of the last century, and it was he who in 1799, by desire of the French Government, brought a troop of Italian dancers to Paris. He was the father of Filippo Taglioni who was born in 1777, and died only six years short of a centenarian in 1871. Filippo was also the father of the great Maria Taglioni, who was his favourite pupil. Maria Taglioni made her début in 1822 at Vienna, but her fame reached its height during Lumley's management of Her Majesty's Theatre. She afterwards, until some time before her death—about six years ago—gave private lessons in London. Paul Taglioni, a celebrated male dancer, was her brother, and the lately deceased Marie Taglioni, who for some years was the star of the ballet at Berlin, was her niece.

THE BELGIAN SHAKESPEARE.

So young Mr. Maeterlinck, "the Belgian Shakespeare," writes for posterity, does he? That is what an admirer says of him, and it may be true. Charles Lamb once humorously declared that he would write for antiquity. There was as much sense in the one aspiration as in the other If it is simply meant that Mr. Maeterlinck is not going to pander to the common place ideals of to-day, well and good; but if it means that he does not think his contemporaries worth writing for, he is wrong. Shakespeare may be the young gentleman's examplar and hero; but any writer to be truly great, must take his inspiration from "all the best that is thought and said" in the generation of which he forms a part. So far, nothing could be less like Shakespeare's work than Mr. Maeterlinck's; where the Shakesperian impulse comes in it is not easy to see.

TENNYSON'S "SEA-BLUE BIRD."

Lord Tennyson's "sea-blue bird of March" has long since been identified, on the authority of the poet himself, as neither the swallow nor the wheat-ear, nor the blue titmouse, as various readers have suggested, but simply the kingfisher. It has been already pointed out that the phrase bears a close resemblance to "the sea-purple bird of spring," by which the Spartan lyric poet refers to the halcyon; but Lord Tennyson states that he derived the phrase directly from his own remembrance of the kingfishers who were wont to make their first appearance about the Lincolnshire rivers in the month of March. In answer to a correspondent, the poet has lately confirmed this solution of a much-discussed question with the interesting addition that were he re-writing the poem he would substitute "darts" for "flits by," and "sea-shining" for "sea-blue."

HOW TO WRITE AN OPERATIC LIBRETTO.

An interesting discussion is now in progress upon the question whether an operatic libretto should be written in prose or verse. M. Gounod is known some years ago to have determined to set a prose play to music. Verdi has not entered the discussion, but it is understood he prefers verse. M. Massenet and M. Reyer think prose suitable so long as the style is elevated. MM. Ambroise Thomas and Salvayre prefer verse, M. Paladilhe is indifferent, while M. Benjamin Godard sagaciously remarks that a great deal depends upon the inspiration of the musician. The Spanish composer, Senor Thomas Breton, suggested a compromise the recitatives (or those portions which in modern opera stand for recitatives) to be in prose and the songs in verse.

THE LYRIC MUSE.

If it were not that one is so accustomed to the imaginative qualities of the illustrated weeklies, one would think but ovilly of the Lyric Muse as depicted by Mr. Onslow Ford on the pedestal of the Marlowe Memorial. According to one of these unveracious chroniclers, the Muse looks uncommonly like a drab—a species of Audrey, or a Bacchante somewhat disguised in liquor. But, then, the artist has not even caught Mr. Irving's expression; and if he could not do that how could he possibly do justice to the Muse? And why the Lyric Muse, by the way? Surely it is the Dramatic Muse that ought to have been drawn upon in this instance? Marlowe was a lyrist, but he was a dramatist in the first place and most notably.

MR. KIPLING AND HIS CRITICS.

Mr. Edmund Gosse, discoursing of Mr. Kipling in the Century for October, keeps well in the middle path between over-detraction and over-praise. The article is not at all dithyrambic—happily. And it contains two sensible suggestions—to the effect that Mr. Kipling should lock up pen, ink, and paper for some time to come, and that he should never write on subjects other than Anglo-Indian; in other words, he should stick to what he understands, and should not write too much. The advice is wise. Mr. Kipling's work is not for all markets or for all times. It is possible to tire of it, even when it is at its best—and it is not always so. It belongs to the condiments of literature—excellent as flavouring matter, but not the sort of thing of which it is possible or desirable to make a good meal.

THE COMING OF IBSEN.

M. Antoine, the founder and manager of the Theatre Libre, announces that he will have no more to do with Ibsen. He is satisfied he says, with the fact that in producing "The Doll's House" and "Hedda Gabler," leading theatres have acknowledged the influence of the example of the Theatre Libre in introducing to the Parisian public "Ghosts" and "The Wild Duck." M. Antoine professes to have discovered another dramatic genius. This time it is neither a Norwegian pessimist nor a "Belgian Shakspeare" The new light of the Theatre Libre hails from Spain. A sample of his productions is in preparation. Meanwhile M. Antoine and his association are about to appear in nothing more fresh or startling than a new version of Balzac's "Pere Goriot."

BRAHMS AT WORK.

Johannes Brahms has, in accordance with his custom, devoted the summer to composition. He has been staying at Ischi, and besides writing several new songs, he has completed two works to which a hearing will assuredly be given in the course of the forthcoming season of Popular Concerts. One is a clarinet trio, which is highly spoken of, and the other is a second set of "Gipsy Songs" of a similar character to the popular set Op. 103, produced a few years ago, and also written for a quartet of vocalists, with accompaniment for a single pianist. Brahms is acknowledged to be the greatest of living German musicians, and these valuable additions to the repertory of chamber music will be very welcome to the habitues of the Popular Concerts.

LECKY'S POEMS.

Before his book of "Poems" is published, Mr. W. E. H. Lecky gives us a taste of his poetic quality in some verses contributed to the October Longman's. Those are addressed to Seville, "City of the Sun," and are written in octo-syllabic measure. They are rather prettily turned, but "grove" and "rove" are not very good rhymes (though they will pass), and "hair" and "air" are still less good. Perhaps the best couplet in the piece is that which describes

"The deftly quivering fan,
Telling more than language can."

Altogether, this modest effort whets the reader's appetite for what is to follow.

MISS BRADDON AT HOME.

Miss Braddon leads a quiet and almost a secluded life at Richmond-hill. Most of her leisure is spent in the saddle, and she is still in harness, figuratively speaking, as an author, which the publication of "Gerald" amply attests. Of late years she has not often sought the literary circles of which she was formerly an ornament: she very rarely appears in public, and never at any gathering where there is a crowd. Her constant companion, when his engagements will allow of it, is her son, Mr. Gerald Maxwell. Miss Braddon's general health is excellent.

Among the last party transported to Siberia was Victor Gardnerko, an inspector of the Moscow police, who has been deprived of his civil rights and exiled to Tobolsk. He is punished for having ordered the administration of the knout to persons of the peasant and burgher class. Knouting is a customary, albeit an illegal, operation.

FEMININE FACTS AND FANCIES.

GLORIANA'S WIDOWERS.

It is curious how invariably widowers try the experiment of matrimony a second time, writes Gloriana to the World; like influenza a first attack predisposes to a second seizure, and as pigs rush into the flames of a burning homestead, so Benedick runs back to the conjugal fire. I know many old bachelors; but whore, may I ask, are the persistent widowers? It is a moot point whether it be more complimentary to the memory of a lamented wife to marry again or remain fidele. Some maintain a second union proves Number One to have pointed out the path of true bliss so successfully that the once happy husband instinctively soothes his lacerated feelings as an identical source. This sounds plausible on paper, but my disembodied spirit would never subscribe to sophistries such as these. I assure Arthur he would find consolation within two years, and sometimes am thoughtful enough to pick out likely successors, having a morbid curiosity to know what manner of woman would step into my fortunate shoes. His indignant protestations are balm to a beating breast, but reason whispers a different tale. A large party were discussing this lugubrious subject, and ridiculing my convictions, so I challenged the doubters to produce an example of a widower surviving his wife in a state of single blessedness many years, or, at least, one who had not arrived as far as a proposal. A solemn silence fell on the company, and, strange to say, nobody at the moment could quote a solitary instance. Alack-a-day! Time is "our only" infallible physician!

PRETTY STAGE DRESSES.

There was quite a fashionable audience at the St. James's Theatre. The St. James's is once more, as it was in the successful period of the Kendal management, one of the few houses at which full dress is the invariable rule. There were some pretty stage dresses. Miss Gertrude Kingston's new evening gown was quite a revelation of the coming fashion. The dress was in white satin, with every seam of the trained skirt outlined with a glittering galon of cut steel. The bodice had a corslet made of the same trimming; the sleeves were looped up with pink roses, and then a large spray of the flowers peeped up above one side of the corsage. The basque was set in pleats, and lined with pink silk. Miss Lily Hanbury wore a bright pink dress in the first act, and afterwards a white ball dress with the basque fringed with buttercups. Her last dress was in buttercup yellow crepon with a deep basque of the new white wire-lace, and a flounce of the same, headed by an insertion of green satin ribbon. But all the other dresses sank into insignificance by the side of that worn in the second piece by Miss Marion Terry. This dress was a curious combination of lemon and orange, the train bodice and hip panniers being made of orange brocade, the petticoat of lemon-colored satin embroidered in yellow bugle beads. The train was lined with green satin, and the hip panniers were edged with a line of sable, which made an exquisite harmony with the yellow.

CLAD IN "RIPPLING WAVES OF LIGHT."

Dresses described in detail lose something of the charm. "News" says further, those worn by Miss Elizabeth Robins as the persecuted heroine were trailing, trimmingless garments, that clung about her slender form in frightened folds, and in their simplicity defied all detail. A white brocade, with an undistinguishable pattern that gave an effect of rippling waves of light, had merely a foam of white chiffon and white plumes bordering the hem in front, and a fichu-like drapery upon the bosom finished with an aigrette of ostrich feathers. Only the glitter of diamonds on her bare neck relieved the snowy whiteness of a lovely vision. A grey tweed gown that had the length of a Court train had a knotted band of peach-coloured ribbon round the waist. It was almost hidden under a voluminous cloak of cloth, the colour of a plum, edged with dark grey fur. A broad felt hat had knots of plum-coloured velvet among peach-coloured ribbon bows. The harmony of hue was darkly soft and rich. It suited Miss Robins's rich colouring to perfection, and is an ideal travelling gown for a brunette.

THE COMING FASHIONS.

Although it is too early to speak definitely of the fashions that will prevail during the coming season there are enough new autumn materials to guide us in a choice of what to buy for early winter wear. Almost all colours seem to be in request, especially noticeable being a new shade of brown, with a crimson tint, called "bois," a shade of purple called "dahlia," and a particularly good subdued shade of red-brown. Green in soft shades of olive and "serpent," and also in a bright vivid myrtle, may be called the predominant colour of the dressmaker's art at the moment. As to materials they are more varied and artistic than ever, and the new "hairy" woollens which have just made their appearance are admirable both in colour and design, the latter of which assumes the form of stripes, wavy lines, broken lines, spots, ovals, crescents, and obecks. This hairy excrescence is in a variety of colours or combinations of colours, such as crimson and orange, and a host of shades of blue, whilst in some plain materials the border alone is of the hairy pattern which is generally arranged in stripes, and presents the appearance of fur.

THE CUIRASS AND LOUIS XV. BODICES.

I have seen a pretty dress of olive-coloured figured woollen material, made with a slightly-draped skirt opening on one side over a velvet petticoat of the exact shade of colour, the other side of the skirt being draped high on the hip. The cuirass bodice was finished off a little below the waist, and had a collar of velvet like a man's, turning over in front, and lined and piped with bright orange-coloured silk, the same touch of colour being found on the cuffs. A walking dress of subdued claret colored diagonal cloth was made with a plain skirt arranged in a few folds in front, with narrow panels of gold embroidered velvet let in to each side. The long Louis XV. bodice was cut short and pointed in front only, the sides and back of the basque being long. A ceinture embroidered with gold passementerie came from the side seams, and was shaped to the waist, giving the appearance of the old-fashioned stomacher.

CHANGES IN MILLINERY.

In millinery, though there is nothing particularly new in the way of shape, a great change is to be seen in the way of adornment, flowers and tulle having almost entirely disappeared to make way for velvet trimmings, wings, and feathers. The small close-fitting Princess bonnet seems to be returning to popularity. The crowns are generally of velvet, and are trimmed with ostrich tips which stand up high at the back. Very daring colours are being used by the milliners, notably bright tints of scarlet and orange being much in favour. The fashion of large black "picture" hats trimmed with blue, as seen at the Dudley wedding, has been largely adopted by the modistes, and are very pretty and becoming to fresh, youthful faces. Some of the newest hats are made in cloth, with broad crowns, and slightly waved brims. A charming grey cloth hat was shown to me, the simplicity of which renders it easily manufactured at home. The crown of grey cloth was rather flat and had a moderately wide brim slightly turned up all round. This was trimmed with soft pale grey feather trimming, and had in front large upstanding bows of grey velvet, into which a tiny knot of pink ribbon was introduced. A charming little toque to match a heliotrope costume was made of several shades of heliotrope velvet, and the effect of the light and dark tints, which were very artistically arranged, was extremely good. I hear that the same idea is to be carried out in silk and satin.

THE YOUNG LADY OF THE PERIOD.

Mr. Harry Furnis has been visiting Llandudno. He finds there more than the average number of pretty, fresh-looking young girls, but, he thinks, some of their elders must have been shocked at the affectation and masculine swagger which they evidently thought it was "the thing" to assume, in strong contrast to the effeminacy of a certain type of young man, the languid swell of the drawing-room, who even at the sea-side makes a parade of his affected ennui. Discarding the once favourite parasol, the Llandudno young lady of to-day, Mr. Furnis says, arms herself with a good stout walking-stick, which she carelessly swings as she whistles a popular tune, to the personal detriment of the maiden lady, who with horror-stricken face is walking behind her, and thinking of the prim decorum with which the crinolined young lady of her day was taught to behave. I even noticed that some of those fair visitors, to complete the masculinity of their appearance, were accompanied on their strolls by a couple of fox-terriers! As each specimen of this species approached, I looked anxiously but in vain for a straw in her mouth, and a sporting paper in her hand; these, no doubt, are in reserve for next year's fashion.

A "WRINKLE" IN TEA-MAKING.

We women are all fond of our cup of tea, are we not? And we laugh to scorn the solemn warnings of those scientists and alarmists who tell us that there is "disease" if not "death in the pot?" Still we ought to exercise a little care in making our favourite beverage. We know that the tannin which is extracted from the leaf when it has infused for some time, is very unwholesome; but it frequently happens that the tea cannot be drank directly it is made. (Men are so unpunctual, are they not?) Now this is how I get over the difficulty. I have two teapots, both of which I warm thoroughly. In the one I "mask" my tea, covering the pot with a cosy, not standing it on the hob which—when the fire is fierce—often sends the contents up to boiling point, and of course spoils the tea. Seven minutes after masking, I pour off the tea into the other teapot, which takes its place under the cosy! and if that pot has to stand for a quarter of an hour before the tea is poured out, the beverage is as pure and fresh as if it had just been made.

RESULTS OF WEARING "TOOTH-PICK" SHOES.

Thanks to the recent "run" on what are termed "tooth-pick" shoes, many followers of fashion are now suffering from in-growing toe-nails, the natural results of forcing the feet into narrow-pointed chaussures. These deformed nails—for such they are in reality—are very painful, and frequently defy the art of the chiropodist. A Frankfort doctor, however, has discovered a new treatment, which I have seen successfully tried in two or three tiresome cases: so I briefly describe it. The nail is thoroughly soaked in warm soap and water. Then it is carefully enveloped in tinfoil, which a strip is placed between the in-growing portion and the sore surface which it causes. The tinfoil is kept in position by a thin coating of common wax; and one "dressing" will last for a week or two, during which time the toe must not be moistened, being "washed" by rubbing it with dry bran. A cure is frequently effected in about a month, the sore place healing up, and the nail growing more slowly and in a more natural direction.

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT"

Is absolutely necessary for the Preservation of Health.

YOU CANNOT OVERSTATE ITS VALUE in keeping the BLOOD PURE; as a means of keeping the system clear, and thus taking away the ground-work of Malarious Diseases, BLOOD POISONS, and all Liver complaints, or as a HEALTH-GIVING, COOLING, and INVIGORATING BEVERAGE, or as a gentle LAXATIVE or TONIC in the various forms of Indigestion, ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" is invaluable.

IT IS THE BEST PREVENTIVE AND CURE FOR

Biliousness.	Sick Headache.
Mental Depression.	Want of Appetite.
Skin Eruptions.	Pimples on the Face.
Constipation.	Vomiting.

SPARKLING AND REFRESHING DRAUGHT.—Notwithstanding its medicinal value, the "FRUIT SALT" must be looked upon as essential as a breathing from sea, or as a simple and safe beverage under all CIRCUMSTANCES, and may be taken as a sparkling and refreshing draught in the same way as Lemonade, Soda Water, Potass Water, &c., only it is much cheaper and BETTER, IN EVERY SENSE OF THE TERM, TO AN UNLIMITED EXTENT.

HEADACHE AND DISORDERED STOMACH.—After suffering two and a half years from severe headache and disordered stomach, and after trying everything, and spending much money without any benefit, I was recommended ENO'S "FRUIT SALT," and before I had finished one bottle I found it doing me a great deal of good, and I NOW I am restored to my usual health; and others I know that have tried it have not enjoyed such good health for years.—Yours most truly, ROBERT HUMPHREYS, Post Office, Barrasford, England.

SAVED ME MUCH MISERY FROM FEVERS.—Two years' trial of your excellent "FRUIT SALT" has saved me much misery from colonial fevers, indigestion, and impaired appetite, to which I have been subject during eleven years' residence in the tropics. It is invaluable to travellers as a preventive of sea-sickness and a relief from other ailments. I would as soon think of going a voyage without my tooth-brush as my bottle of ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."—Yours, &c., W. J. B., British Guiana, Dec. 5, 1878.

HOT COUNTRIES.—ACIDITY OF STOMACH.—"I have used ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT,' and know it not alone to be excellent, but really invaluable. Especially in the hot countries of the East, where Acidity of the Stomach, Biliousness, and Fevers are so common."—J. M. PEEBLES, M.D., Author of Around the World, Travels in Polynesia, China, India, Arabia, Egypt, &c., &c.

IN CENTRE OF AFRICA WITHOUT ANY MEDICAL MAN.—"Natives came with all manner of diseases. One day we had a man that was said to be mad. Whether mad or not, he was far from well, and I gave him a large dose of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT.' The poor fellow came back next morning to tell us that he was better. His breath was no longer offensive, and he looked cheerful. We were sorry when our supply of 'FRUIT SALT' was done; it was a favourite, both with natives and Europeans, and is much used along the malarious coasts."—Africana, by Rev. DUFF MACDONALD, M.A., B.D., Vol. II., p. 207.

"Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold,
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace."—Tennyson.

IMPORTANT TO ALL.

What every Travelling Trunk and every Household in the World ought to contain:—A Bottle of

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT,"

A Most Refreshing, Cooling, and Invigorating Beverage.

NO TRAVELLER SHOULD LEAVE HOME without a supply, for by its use the most dangerous forms of FEVERS, BLOOD POISONS, &c., are prevented and cured. It is, in truth, a FAMILY MEDICINE CHEST in the simplest yet most potent form. Instead of being lowering to the system, this preparation is, in the highest degree, invigorating. Its effect in relieving thirst, giving tone to the system, and aiding digestion, is most striking.

IT IS THE BEST PREVENTIVE AND CURE FOR

Giddiness.	Feverishness.
Thirst, &c.	Unnatural Excitement.
Impure Blood.	Errors in Diet.
Heartburn.	Liver Derangements.

PRESERVING AND RESTORING HEALTH.—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" acts as simply, yet just as powerfully, on the animal system as sunshine does on the vegetable world. It has a natural action on the organs of digestion, absorption, circulation, respiration, secretion, and excretion, and removes all impurities, thus preserving and restoring health.

TO PARENTS.—This preparation is invaluable in the nursery as a gentle laxative; it is pleasant to the taste, and much superior to senna or other nauseous drugs; it corrects the ill effects of over-eating or exhaustion, it is extremely beneficial in any feverishness or heat of the skin. The bowels ought to be kept free by the "FRUIT SALT" for a month or six weeks after eruptive diseases, as Measles, Scarlet Fever, Chicken-pox, Small-pox, and all Fevers or Infectious Diseases, &c.; for its use frees the system of the "dregs."

"THOUSANDS OF MILES IN INDIA."—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" I have found of the utmost value in the hot and dry seasons, also in the monsoons. I have travelled thousands of miles in India, and in all the various changes of climate I have always found ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" the most refreshing beverage, especially after long heavy marches and other fatiguing duties to which the British soldier of late has been exposed. My dear wife, during her travail, found it to be the most useful thing that could be obtained. Yours, &c., a Warder, Central Military Prison, Poonah. Jan. 30, 1884.

STIMULANTS and insufficient amount of exercise frequently derange the liver. ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" is peculiarly adapted for any constitutional weakness of the liver. A world of woe is avoided by those who keep and use ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."—"All our customers for ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT' would not be without it upon any consideration, they having received so much benefit from it."—WOOD BROTHERS, Chemists, Jersey, 1878."

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and nutritional properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.

THE WORLD'S BEST LEMON SQUEEZER

Is to the old-fashioned article what the Railway is to the Dak Gharry.

No bitter from the rind, as it acts on the pulp only. Made of glass it is kept clean as easily as a tumbler. Almost instantaneous in action, a child can use it without soiling the hands.

TO USE THE MODERN LEMON JUICE EXTRACTOR—

Set it upon a tumbler as shown in sketch, cut the lemon in half, place the half lemon upon the points and press downwards, slightly twisting it. The ribs easily enter the pulp, and the juice pours down through the openings into the tumbler. The openings are so small that the pips cannot pass.

Once tried it will supersede all old-fashioned appliances. Over a million sold already. Patented in India and all leading countries. It is to be had at most Stores in India. Should you be unable to obtain one, the Proprietor will send one post free to any part of India on receipt of 2s., or 6 for 10/4.

Rowland's Macassar Oil

Has been known for 100 years as the best preserver and beautifier of the hair: it prevents it falling off or turning Grey, strengthens weak hair, and eradicates scurf and dandruff; it is unsurpassed as a brilliantine for the beard and moustaches, to which it imparts a soft and silky appearance; it is also sold in a golden colour for fair-haired children.

Rowland's Kalydor

Asoothing and emollient milk for the face, and is most cooling to the skin in hot climates; it removes freckle tan, sunburn, roughness and redness of the skin, pimples, cutaneous eruptions, &c., and produces soft fair skin, and a lovely delicate complexion.

ROWLAND'S ESSENCE OF TYRE, a harmless preparation for dyeing red or grey hair a permanent brown or black. Ask chemists and druggists for Rowland's articles, of 20, Hatton Garden, London, England, and avoid worthless and injurious imitations.
